Statewide Online Voters' Guide Now Live

The League of Women Voters of New Mexico is providing an online Election Voters' Guide for the June 2 semi-open primary elections. The guide covers races all over the state. The Vote411 voter guide is simple, easy to use and free.

It is different than most other online voter guides because it provides candidates' responses to League questions about their qualifications plus where they stand on national, local or state issues.

This is how it works: Go online at Vote411.org. Enter your address to find what races and candidates are on your ballot in the county where you live.

“The League is offering this as a free public service in support of our mission to empower voters,” said NM League of Women Voter President Hannah Burling. “New Mexico voters can check their voter registration, find important election dates, find out what’s on their ballots and what candidates have to say. It’s an easy online tool for voters and offers candidates another way of reaching potential supporters.”

May 5th was the start of early in-person voting for the Primary Election. Voters can request an absentee ballot application online now at NMVOTE.org.
